

I am writing in opposition to changing the current net neutrality rules. My wife is bed-bound with Fourth Stage cancer and relies on Netflix, Hulu, and YouTube to keep her mind occupied. As our retirement income is stretched to the point of breaking and losing our house if the prices of these services were to rise due to a tiered price structure based on bandwidth use, or any other specious argument. As we are both handicapped and over 70, there is no way to increase our cash flow. Your actions probably will impact this pair of citizens very negatively, have you no shame or regrets at the possible damage you do?
